

Target audience

This recurrent training is aimed towards shippers who need to prepare shipments of dangerous goods for marine transport. The basic training (IMO-E) is required to attend to this training.

Goal

After attending this training, the participant will be qualified to prepare shipments containing dangerous goods intended to be transported by sea, according to the international and national requirements.

Duration

1 day, 8 hours

Training content

This audio-visual supported training will allow participants to acquire the knowledge required by the international and national Regulations on transportation of dangerous goods. We are a training organization accredited by the Commission des partenaires du marché du travail. Our training is eligible under the Act to promote workforce skills development and recognition.

Here are the topics that will be covered:

- Act and Regulations revision and updates
- Use of I.M.D.G. Code
- Classification system - 9 classes
- Classification criteria
- Segregation
- Packaging requirements
- Marking and labelling
- Shipping documents
- Placards
- Loading requirements
- Exemptions
- Emergency measures
- Emergency report

During the training, the participants are encouraged to ask questions. The attendee must complete a questionnaire to evaluate the knowledge acquired on classification of dangerous goods, marking and labelling and shipping documents, among others. This questionnaire will be returned to their employer as well as a wall certificate and wallet size certificate.

Training material

- Workbook
- Dangerous goods classification list
- Questionnaire
- Pen
- Certificates, wall and wallet pocket size

An I.M.D.G. Code - International Maritime Dangerous Goods Code will be available for the attendee during the training.